PREACH'D

By J. J. ZUBLY, V. D. M.

Brethren, ye have been called unto Liberty; only uſe not Liberty as an occaſion to the Fleſh.

But if ye bite and devour one another, take heed that ye be not conſumed one of another.

TEXT. ZECHARIAH viii. 10, 11, 12.

For before theſe days there was no hire for man, nor any hire for beaſt; neither was there any peace to him that went out, or came in, becauſe of the affliction: for I ſet all men every one againſt his neighbour. But now I will not be unto the reſidue of this people as in the former days, ſaith the LORD of hoſts. For the ſeed ſhall be proſperous: the vine ſhall give her fruit, and the ground ſhall give her increaſe, and the heavens ſhall give their dew: and I will cauſe the remnant of this people to poſſeſs all theſe things.

☞ In this diſcourſe, this new World is conſidered as under Divine Theocracy. And the juſtneſs of the author's compariſons of preſent with paſt events, with the elegance of thought, deſign and expreſſion, render it worthy to be tranſmitted to Poſterity.

THE partnerſhip of NIGHTINGALE and EDWARDS being diſſolved for ſome time; and as there is a neceſſity for cloſing the concerns as ſoon as poſſible, they have placed their books of accompts in the hands of William Hales, who is authoriſed to ſettle the ſame; it is hoped all perſons concerned will diſcharge their reſpective accompts without delay. Thoſe to whom they are indebted are deſired to make known their demands.

LONDON, May 19.

THEY write from Genoa, that an advice boat had just arrived with intelligence, that the malecontents of Corsica had been obliged to raise the siege of St. Bonifacio, on the approach of the French troops, which had given general Maira an opportunity of relieving the garrison with a reinforcement of three hundred men, and a large supply of provisions.

Friday arrived at his excellency the Russian ambassador's house from abroad, a man who measures but 34 inches in height, and is 48 years old.

May 21.

A letter from Calais, dated May 14, says "Monf. Lally, who commanded at Pondicherry in the late war, was beheaded last Saturday at Paris. The parliament had ordered the execution between eight and nine at night; but having some reason to believe he would destroy himself, the execution was performed at five; he was drawn in a cart to the place of execution, where a gag was put into his mouth to prevent his choaking himself with his tongue, which he attempted. His friends had obtained leave to bury him according to his rank; but the parliament was so incensed, that he was obscurely buried in a little church at Paris. He was in the 66th year of his age.

Extract of a letter from Paris.

"The general concern shewn here for the loss of Count de Lally, softens in some measure, in the eyes of his friends, that very hard sentence which brought him to the scaffold. The more candid and better sort of people murmur in private at the glaring partiality which appeared throughout his trial, the precipitation of the judges on an affair of this importance, wherein the life and honour of an old and valiant soldier were concerned, plainly proves, say they, which way they were biassed. Comparisons are daily made between the administration of justice in France and in England, and I meet every day men who weep at the thoughts of this unfortunate victim having been denied the very benefit of advising with counsel, and executed without once hearing what the crimes were that his accusers laid to his charge. The ignominious circumstance attending his execution seemed to reflect less on him than on the coiners of his sentence, and I who behold this melancholy spectacle, as a stranger and a disinterested person, felt as strong emotions of indignation as of pity.

By advices received with the last mail from France we are informed, that the execution of Count Lally has occasioned a general discontent among the people, and that a number of the nobility have retired from court since his unfortunate exit.

'Tis confidently said, the late famous and unfortunate Count Lally, died worth near two millions of our money, which has been seized for the use of the government.

The day after the execution of General Lally, the parliament of Paris proceeded to decide on the charges brought against Mr. Fretard de Gadeville, late quarter-master to the army in the Indies; Mr. Chaponay, captain in Lally's regiment; and Mr. de Pouly, some time provost in the same army; when the two first were sentenced to be reprimanded on their knees, and pay a fine of 100 livres each to the king; and the last received a sharp rebuke from behind the bar, with an injunction to pay the sum of three thousand livres in bread to the prisoners of the Conciergerie.

Letters from Paris inform us, that the count de Lally was removed in the night between the 4th and 5th of this month from the Bastile to the prison of the Conciergerie (communicating with the palace) where he refused to go to bed, and about seven in the morning was conducted to the grand chamber, which was surrounded on all sides by the guards of the parliament. As soon as he appeared before his judges, they ordered him to deliver up his red ribband, &c. which he took off seemingly in great discomposure and confusion; and being afterwards placed on the stool to be interrogated, he clasped his hands, and raised his eyes towards heaven, saying: Is this the reward of forty years service? He underwent an interrogation of near twelve hours, during which he was successively confronted by the Marquis de Bussy and the count d'Aché; and at nine the same evening was remanded to the Bastile, under the escorte of several companies of the Guet, and the guards of the parliament.

The same arret which condemned the count de Lally, cleared the count d'Aché, and suppressed the memorials of the former as false and defamatory.

A foreigner is lately arrived in this metropolis, who has found out the means of hardening leather, and tempering it in such a manner, as to render it impenetrable to musket balls, and the keenest edge swords.

May 22.

Some letters from Paris say, that a violent prosecution, similar to that carried on against the late Mr. Lally, was stirring up against the count d'Estaing, late governor of St. Domingo; from the effects of which, it was tho't, that gentleman would find it very difficult to screen himself, notwithstanding all the united interests of his friends.

We are informed from Elgin of Murray, in Scotland, that one Donaldson, a labouring man, who had been deaf for upwards of twenty years, being at work in the fields, was suddenly struck to the ground by a flash of lightning; soon after which, to the surprize of every body, he was fully restored to his hearing.

May 23.

They write from Versailles, that the prince de Beauffremont Lisienois, lieutenant-general in the French king's naval forces, took his leave of that Monarch on the 4th inst. in order to repair to Toulon, where he is going to take upon him the command of the squadron now fitting out at that port. The destination of this squadron is kept an inviolable secret.

The representations of the parliament of Rouen, lately made to the French king, conclude thus: "Deign, Sire, to extend your views to ages to come: let remotest posterity be able to say, LOUIS the WELL-BELOVED might be deceived; but that great king became sensible of the oversight; and his justice and greatness of soul induced him to avow it, to repair it, and to confound the authors of the imposture."

A personage of the first rank is at present employing herself in studying the British constitution, in which she has already made a surprising progress.

May 26.

Friday last Mr. Secretary Conway removed to, and took place as Secretary of State for the Northern department, in the room of the Duke of Grafton.

And the same day the Duke of Richmond entered upon his office as Secretary of State for the Southern department.

We are now told that the marriage portion of a great personage will be one hundred thousand pounds sterling, on account of her being espoused to a crowned head.

According to private letters from Madrid, divers persons of the first rank were strongly suspected by the court of secretly spiriting up the late insurrections for the removal of the Marquis Squillacci; but that the perplexed situation of the times did not permit any public enquiries to be made into the affair.

May 27.

It is said his Majesty's ship the Dolphin and Tamar have performed a voyage round the globe, and in a much shorter time than it was done before. The latter lost her rudder on this side the æquator, on her way to England, and is gone to Antigua to have a new one. They have undergone great hardships in this voyage; yet it is remarkable that the Dolphin buried but six men; which, it is said, is owing to the inflexible integrity and great generosity of the hon. commodore Byron.

A number of Indians, men, women, and children, to the amount of five hundred at least, were seen by the company of the Dolphin man of war from the East Indies: they were at least eight feet and an half high, rode on horses not more than fourteen or fifteen hands high, and were clad in the skins of beasts unknown to this country. These people were seen on the east side of the Terra Patagonia, in South America, at the entrance of the Streights of Magellan; and till our seeing them, the accounts given by former voyagers were not believed by us. They were conversed with by signs, and given many presents by the hon. commodore who commanded on this voyage.

May 28.

General Lally, who suffered lately, was born in France, his father was an Irish gentleman, commander of the Irish Brigade in the French service, and was very much respected by that court. The said unfortunate count had a captain's commission given him as soon as he was born.

The Sieur Astruc, consulting physician of the French king, regent doctor of the faculty of physic at Paris, and an excellent writer on the subjects of his art, died there lately, aged 83 years.

May 30.

His Majesty was on wednesday pleased to confer the dignity of a Baronet of Great-Britain, on John Pingle, M. D.

His Majesty has also conferred the dignity of a Baronet of Great-Britain, on William East, Esq;

May 31.

They write from Madrid, that the king has sent orders to the Marquis d'Enfenada, to retire from court. Near 10,000 troops are posted round the capital, to assist in case of future disturbances, which are much to be feared, from the present apparent discontent of the people.

According to letters from Toulon, the island of Corsica was whispered to be the object of the naval expedition fitting out there, but whether to act for or against the mal-contents was uncertain.

According to several letters from Corsica, the prisoners of war have been exchanged; but Paoli and his senate are so much exasperated, not only against the Genoese, but the French also, who lately caused two men of Paoli's party, a taylor and a shoemaker, to be hanged at Ajaccio, for having said in the presence of the French garrison, Long live our country! Long live Paoli its defender! that peace seems to be at an end, and perhaps by this time the French and Paolists are come to open hostilities.

By advices lately received from France we are informed, that the late unfortunate count Lally, in going to the place of his execution, was gagged, not out of fear that he would dispatch himself by swallowing his tongue, but that he might not make some important discoveries at his death.

They write from Paris, that very great dissatisfaction prevails there among the people, on account of the execution on general Lally, who was universally esteemed to be a brave soldier and an honest man, and is supposed to have fallen a victim to court intrigues, to screen the faults of others.

June 24.

It is reported, that the Right. Hon. Lord Viscount Barrington, and the Right Hon. Lord Viscount Gage, both of the kingdom of Ireland, will be created Peers of Great-Britain.

They write from Genoa, that by order of general Paoli, watch towers have been set up in the most conspicuous part of the island, under his subjection; by which the most easy notice can be communicated from one district to another, of the motions of an enemy.

We are informed, that the chief justice of one of the new settlements in America, is become greatly popular by his vigorous opposition to some arbitrary measures of their governor; and for which his health is toasted in all companies, in the same manner as it has been the practice to toast that great patriot, Lord Camden's, in England.

We are informed, that one of the officers belonging to the hon. commodore Byron's squadron, which went out in search of the new discovered island in the South Seas, brought a child of two years and an half old from the shore on board their ship, when, on measuring him, he was found to be three feet eight inches and an half high. They afterwards dressed him up in a very gay manner, particularly with a gold laced hat, a number of beads and feathers, with which the inhabitants seemed highly pleased, and brought plenty of fruit, fowls, &c. the produce of their country, which shews they have an innate principle of gratitude.

The voyage, lately performed round the world, under the command of the hon. commodore Byron, was kept so secret, that none of the ship's company knew any thing of its destination, being told no more but to provide themselves with cloaths proper for a hot climate. It is pretty remarkable, that none but picked men went out, and no boys were allowed. The officers all agree, that the cattle of the above island are extremely fat and fine, but small, and it is imagined from several circumstances that there are valuable mines in it.

Thursday the baggage of Count Guerchy was sent on board a ship in the river for Calais.

We are told, that the manner, by which the hon. Mr. Byron was enabled to distinguish, with some degree of precision, the size of the giant Patagonians, was by one of the natives leaving a gun behind him on the shore, which scarce reached above his middle, though it was five feet high.

We hear his Majesty's ship the Dolphin will have an additional complement of men and provisions, on going out, for the better prosecuting discoveries on the southern continent. She is also to take on board an assortment of such goods as are proper to establish a correspondence with the natives, and be furnished with a necessary apparatus for rendering sea-water fresh by distillation.

We are informed, that every person who shall bring over blacks into this kingdom, will be obliged to give security to the parish officers where they land, that they shall not become burthensome to the parish; and the same regulation to be observed by every person where they shall reside. It is computed there are full 60,000 in Great-Britain.

It is now said, that the reason why a certain great man was refused the privilege of nominating persons to offices, which he insisted on as the condition of his coming into the ministry, was, lest he should be as blind to the merits of Scotchmen in disposing of employments, as the Favourite was to the merits of the English.

The national debt, as it stood the 5th day of January last, being old Christmas-day, amounts to 130,213,902 l. 14 s. 6 d. ½ and the annual interest, or other charges payable for the same is, 4, 698,656l. 15s. 5d.

Yesterday M. De Malzahan, Minister Plenipotentiary from the King of Prussia, had his first private audience of his Majesty to deliver his credentials.

According to the information we have received from different parts of the province, notwithstanding the unusual quantities of rain that have fallen last spring and this summer, if the harvest season should prove good, there is a prospect of a vast crop of Rice being made: But the indico plant has suffered greatly by the rains; and the crop of corn is not likely to be very considerable.

For the Purpoſe of raiſing a REVENUE, by ACT of PARLIAMENT.

"THIS pamphlet is univerſally allowed, by the very beſt judges, to be the moſt maſterly performance in vindication of the rights of the colonies, and ſtating the nature of that juriſdiction which Great-Britain has over them, according to its conſtitution, the rules of juſtice and prudence, and the relation ſubſiſting between them, that has appeared among all the numerous judicious productions of the moſt able writers that have exerted themſelves upon this alarming occaſion. And as this author has ſhewn himſelf to be perfectly acquainted with the laws & conſtitution of England, as well as the rights of the colonies, and has in the cleareſt manner ſtated the facts, and deduced his concluſions from the moſt ſolid and unexceptionable principles; it is not doubted but it will do great ſervice both in America and England, by clearing the moſt weighty ſubject that ever the nation had under conſideration, of the difficulties with which it was attended, and ſhewing both the people of England and America the limits of their rights."
